Federal Employee Retirements Victor S. Rezendes,2001-12 Increasing numbers of Fed. employees (FE) will become eligible to retire over the next few years. Questions have been raised about whether the gov't. will be prepared to meet any problems that could arise as a result of retirements. This report determines how many FE are likely to retire in the near future. It estimates the no. of FE who would be eligible to retire and the no. who would actually retire collectively and by agency for the 24 Fed. agencies that fall under the CFO Act for FY 1999-2006, and compared those estimates with the no. of FE who were eligible and actually retired during FY 1991-1998. Assesses actual and estimate eligibility and retirement for the same periods for selected critical occupations.
